

Programme

Have We Become Too Ethical?

- Managing vulnerability in human subject research

University of Sussex, Brighton UK
Monday, 9 November, 2015 10am - 5:15pm

---

9:30 - 10:00 Check-in and Coffee Welcome

10:00 - 10:10 Opening remarks

Margaret Sleeboom-Faulkner and Bob Simpson

10:10 - 12:25 Panel 1: Ethical Review at Home for Health-Related Research Abroad

Context is (nearly) everything where ethical review is concerned

Ron Iphofen, Independent Research Consultant

But we don't inject green stuff: Harm, risk and the organisation of ethics review

Adam Hedgecoe, Cardiff University

The ethical consequences of management and joint ownership of ethnographic data

Peter Pels, University of Leiden

12:25 - 1:25 Lunch

1:25 - 3:40 Panel 2: Research Review in Transnational Research and Collaborations

Incommensurable Ethics: Ethnographic insights on negotiating human subject research between China and the US

Priscilla Song, Washington University

From 'Moral Force' to 'Research Integrity': Building capacity in research ethics across Asia

Rachel Douglas-Jones, IT University of Copenhagen

On the trivialisation of Maori research ethics

Martin Tolich, University of Otago

3:40 - 3:50 Break

3:55 - 5:10 Question Time -- Panel:

ASA: Lucy Pickering

BSA: Rose Barbour

ERC: Veronica Martinez-Ocana

ESRC: Michelle Dodson

Wellcome Trust: Katherine Littler

5:10 - 5:15 Closing remarks